

Action

Purpose: The "Call to Action" showcase.

I think what a normal people in Nova Scotia should do is they should join those organisations for clean up those ghost fishing gear, also participate in shoreline clean ups held by the community, they also should report imminently for once they discovered any lost fishing nets and other lost sea traps, and they should share those information with other people so that more people would join and participate all together.

Mostly those ghost fishing gear appear in regions like south Nova Scotia and PEI, other regions also has them but not as much.
